1. Association of Asian Confederation of Credit Unions

Special, 2007

Introduction

The Association of Asian Confederation of Credit Unions (ACCU) is the regional representative organization of credit unions and similar cooperative financial institutions in Asia. Organized on 28 April 1971, ACCU represents 47 million members from more than 36,000 credit unions in 20 countries. ACCU has been instrumental in helping members address development issues such as poverty, gender equality, youth involvement and access to financial services particularly for disadvantaged groups.

Aims and purposes of the organization

The organization aims to work in partnership with apex organizations of credit unions to promote and strengthen credit unions as a vehicle for the socioeconomic development of people in Asia.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

Since December 2013, ACCU has worked with the United Nations Capital Development Fund (UNCDF) in Myanmar on the MicroLead Expansion Program. The project established 24 credit unions with 8,300 members of which 59 per cent are women from rural areas. The credit unions mobilised savings/shares of USD 80,000 and granted loans of USD 204,000.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

ACCU participated in a seminar entitled “Reaching rural areas with Digital Financial services”, Kampala, Uganda, 23-27 February 2014. It also took part in a “Regional Consultation on Increased Women’s Economic Opportunities and Rights in ASEAN” organized by the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN-Women), 10-11 November 2015, during which it presented the ACCU experience on microfinance innovations.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

No cooperation was specified.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

In 1999, the Credit Union Microfinance Innovation (CUMI) was introduced to integrate low-income members into the mainstream of society. CUMI offers the following services focused on long-term financial well-being: wealth building savings, affordable terms on loans, education on thrift, entrepreneurship, and credit union involvement. The programme has reached 11 million mostly women members.

ACCU introduced the Business Development Center (BDC) to help small entrepreneurs overcome bottlenecks by providing them with business development services such as training, technical services, business consultancy, trade facilitation, and outreach to minority members of socially and economically disadvantaged groups.

ACCU introduced the Global Women's Leadership Network to connect women in credit union movements worldwide and engage them in professional and personal development through online and in-person educational platforms. By interacting with other professionals, women can access unlimited resources and learn from the experiences of their peers.

2. Citizen's Coalition for Economic Justice

Special, 1999

Introduction

The Citizens' Coalition for Economic Justice (CCEJ) was founded in 1989 in the Republic of Korea to represent citizens facing the social and economic threat of soaring housing prices caused by real estate speculation and other events.

Aims and purposes of the organization

CCEJ seeks to advance freedom and equality by achieving a democratic welfare society, which secures the right of the people to have a say in the selection of government legislators, policy development, and the promotion of a vibrant and efficient market economy; and in proposing solutions to the shortcomings of a market economy, such as unequal distribution, monopoly and pollution.

Significant changes in the organization

There have been no significant changes.

Contribution of the organization to the work of the United Nations

CCEJ attends the annual sessions of the United Nations General Assembly and pays attention to the priority areas of civil society organizations (CSOs). CCEJ also contributes opinions to the United Nations Special Rapporteur on extreme poverty and human rights in response to requests for the views of civil society on policies and practices.

Participation in meetings of the United Nations

CCEJ representatives attended the 69th session of the United Nations General Assembly, including the side event discussing the post-2015 development agenda. Representatives attended the Open Forum on Justice and Governance coordinated by the Asia Development Alliance, the International NGO Forum on Indonesian Development and the Republic of Korea CSOs alliance. CCEJ also took part in several other meetings during the General Assembly, including the Logolink meeting on citizen participation, Beyond2015 strategy meeting and the World Food Programme (WFP) meeting on hunger and poverty.

Cooperation with United Nations bodies

In 2013, CCEJ signed the United Nations Convention against Corruption. CCEJ submitted opinions in preparation for a forthcoming thematic report on the human rights impact of fiscal and tax policy to the 26th session of the Human Rights Council.

Initiatives taken by the organization in support of the Millennium Development Goals

As a focal point of Global Call to Action against Poverty (GCAP) in the Republic of Korea, CCEJ contributed to MDG 1 by implementing a campaign with development CSOs in the Republic of Korea and supporting the overall development agenda through advocacy and outreach.
